Internship positions

- ✓ Do you want to make a difference?
- ✓ Are you fascinated with psychology?
- ✓ And do you want to work with conflicts – at home, in the workplace, or in politics?

Apply now for one of the internship positions:

Student researcher

Dive deep into the psychology of war and peace – both within families and politics. You will review literature, books and documentaries from world's best and most famous therapists. What conflicts do they see? When you love reading, summarising, and reviewing research, this role is for you. Upon request, you can also zoom in on specific topics like suicidal ideation, intergenerational trauma, and climate depression.

Student journalist

Work like a journalist doing interviews and writing out various case study analyses with Oscar's theoretical framework and intake notes. You will explore, deepen and describe the workings of the concepts within daily practice. When you love theoretical thinking, doing interviews, writing, and in-depth conversation analysis, this role is for you.

Student marketer

Learn how to do sales in the mental health industry. How can we lower the bar to talk about our psychological problems? How can we make mental health professionals want to learn more about the certification program? This role requires coordination of communication efforts, marketing, and to brand 'a new philosophy' of human development.

Other benefits and details of this internship

Next to your student role, wherever possible, you may attend Oscar's presentations, workshops, trainings, and psychological client work with individuals, couples, business teams, media, and politicians. Both international and Dutch students are invited to apply. Working from home is possible, although you are also welcome in the office. Together with the student, the internship scope will be determined. Unfortunately, there is no financial compensation. However, what you will learn about yourself and the mental health industry is of lifetime value! The internship start and end dates plus work schedule are set with each individual student.

Do you have another idea for a role?

When you have another idea about a student role that you want to pursue but is not listed in the above, feel free to discuss. With each student individually, we will set the scope and define work activities.
